'No Blank Check' on Spying

Skeptical senators grill Gonzales over domestic wiretaps

WASHINGTON | Senators raised doubts about the legal rationale for the Bush administration's eavesdropping program Monday, forcing Attorney General Alberto Gonzales to provide a lengthy defense of the operations he called a vital "early warning system" for terrorists.

A handful of Republicans joined Democrats in raising questions about whether President Bush went too far in ordering the National Security Agency's monitoring operations. The senators were particularly troubled by the administration's argument that a September 2001 congressional resolution approving use of military force covered the surveillance of some domestic communications.

"The president does not have a blank check," said Judiciary Chairman Arlen Specter, R-Pa., who wants the administration to ask the secretive Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court to review the program.

Under Bush's orders, the ultra-secret National Security Agency has been eavesdropping — without warrants — on international communications of people in the United States whose calls and e-mails may be linked to Muslim extremists.

Gonzales repeatedly defended the current program as lawful, reasonable and essential to national security. He said the president's authority is strongest in a time of war, and insisted no changes in law were needed to accommodate the monitoring. (AP)

Outbursts by Moussaoui Disrupt Trial

ALEXANDRIA, VA. | Proclaiming "I am al Qaeda," terrorist conspirator Zacarias Moussaoui disrupted the opening of his sentencing trial Monday and was tossed out of court as selection began for the jurors who will decide whether he lives or dies.

He disavowed his lawyers and pledged to testify on his own behalf in the trial that is to begin March 6. An often volatile figure in his proceedings, Moussaoui was removed from the courtroom four separate times. The potential jurors showed no reaction to his interruptions.

After jury selection, expected to take a month, a penalty trial will determine whether the 37-year-old Frenchman of Moroccan descent, the only person in the U.S. charged in the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks, will be put to death or sentenced to life in prison. He pleaded guilty last April to conspiring to fly planes into U.S. buildings but claims he had no role in the Sept. 11 plot. (AP)

EXPLOSIONS | Pest Out-Of-Control A bug bomb certainly lived up to its name in Burlington City, N.J., on Saturday. When the insect-killing device went off, the resulting explosion was so powerful it blew out the house's windows, WPVI-TV reported.

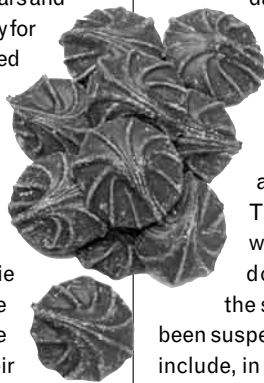

Officials said the chemicals in the bug bomb must have been ignited by something in the home. Two police officers who arrived on the scene suffered minor injuries and were taken to the hospital. (EXPRESS) EyeOpeners | Page 2

'More For Us!' Laugh Girl Scout Troops

More than a dozen elementary school students in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., refused to sell chocolate bars and potato chips to raise money for trips, saying they had learned in class about the health dangers of such snacks. "If they tell us to don't eat junk food and then after school we sell it, that disobeys what they said," reasoned Daphnie Auguste, a member of the defiant class at North Side Elementary School. Their teacher, Monique Manigat, who is also the school's wellness liaison, said the pupils came up with the boycott themselves but finding an alternative hasn't been easy; she said she tried to organize car washes. Talks With Feds Not Part of a Perfect Day

A West Warwick, R.I., seventh-grader who wrote an essay saying his perfect day would involve violence against President Bush is being investigated by the Secret Service. The essay was turned in on Jan. 31, and his teacher alerted school officials. The assignment was to write about what he would do on a perfect day, and the student — who has since been suspended — wrote that would include, in addition to attacking the president, killing Oprah Winfrey and hurting executives at Coca-Cola and Wal-Mart. "His perfect day would be to see the destruction of these people," schools superintendent David Raiche said. (AP)

Bush Budget Ups Defense Spending

$2.77T plan squeezes domestic programs, trims Medicare funds

WASHINGTON | President Bush sent his GOP allies in Congress an austere budget for next year that is filled with political land mines and flush with difficult choices.

The document unveiled Monday clamps down on domestic programs favored by lawmakers and calls for politically perilous curbs to Medicare that promise to bog down in a Congress already poisoned by election-year politics.

Despite the sacrifices called for in education, Amtrak, community development, health research, and many other programs frozen or cut under his plan, Bush's $2.77 trillion blueprint forecasts a record $423 billion deficit for 2006 and improves upon that figure in 2007 largely by lowballing cost estimates for the Iraq war.

Bush gives a generous 6.9 percent budget increase to the Pentagon — which would receive a record $439 billion before accounting for the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan.

His proposal projects $70 billion in new funds to execute the war in Iraq through the end of September, which will come later this month and bring total war funding for 2006 to $120 billion. Another $50 billion is allocated for next year.

At the same time, Bush proposes to kill or dramatically slash 141 programs for savings of almost $15 billion. Congress is likely to reject many of the cuts, such as a proposal to kill the Commodity Supplemental Food Program, which provides food aid

Pa. Gov. Orders Safety Inspections at Mines

HARRISBURG, PA. | Pennsylvania Gov. Ed Rendell on Monday ordered follow-up inspections of the state's mines in the next 30 days, citing the deaths of 16 miners in West Virginia since early January.

He also asked mine operators to observe the federal government's call for safety sessions for workers at the beginning of each shift.

"What happened in West Virginia has affected all of us — and it has drawn new attention on making sure every mine is safe and every miner does his job safely," Rendell said in a statement.

Although the state routinely inspects mines, machinery and maps, Rendell asked for additional inspections of ventilation, electrical equipment and rock-dusting procedures.

Pennsylvania is the nation's fourth-largest coal producer. It has 5,100 miners employed at 77 working underground mines.

Last week, West Virginia Gov. Joe Manchin asked all coal companies to cease production until safety checks were conducted. MARC LEVY (AP)

Calif. Jail Secured After Riots

CASTAIC, CALIF. | Most of Los Angeles County's jail system was on lockdown Monday after fighting broke out between blacks and Hispanics at two jails over the weekend. One inmate died in the fighting, and more than 100 others were injured.

The lockdown was intended to reduce tensions, and it wasn't clear how long it would remain in effect, said Lt. Robert Craton, a watch commander at the North County Correctional Facility.

"We are making every attempt to get back to normal," he said.

Black and Hispanic inmates at the North County Correctional Facility were segregated Saturday after the fighting broke out among 1,800 to 2,000 inmates and a black inmate was killed. Craton said the inmates were still separated early Monday.

Normally, authorities can't segregate prisoners based on race or ethnicity, but legal advisers said it can be done in emergency situations, said Sam Jones, chief custody officer of the county jail system.

The second riot broke out late Sunday at the adjacent North Facility jail, involving about 200 Hispanic and black inmates and wounding 10 people.

Authorities said they were investigating whether the two weekend riots were related. (AP)

Public Honors Coretta Scott King

Mourners pay tribute to civil rights icon at historic Atlanta church

ATLANTA | Thousands of mourners filed past the casket of Coretta Scott King on Monday, paying their respects to the "first lady of the civil rights movement" at the historic church where her husband shared his dream for racial equality in the 1960s.

People lined up for blocks outside Ebenezer Baptist Church, waiting for hours in freezing rain for a moment to bid farewell to the widow of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

Across the street, at least 1,000 people filled the church's newer facility for a musical tribute, including Oprah Winfrey and other entertainers such as Gladys Knight.

The children of Coretta Scott King view the body of their mother at Ebenezer Church.

"For me, she embodied royalty. She was the queen," Winfrey said. "You knew she was a force."

Winfrey laughed as she described persuading King to get a new hairdo on her TV show. And she became emotional when she told how King, in the week before her death, sent her a handmade quilt that her husband's mother had passed down.

King, 78, died Jan. 30 at an alternative medicine clinic in Mexico, where doctors said she was battling advanced ovarian cancer. She also had been recovering from a serious stroke and heart attack.

As the service concluded, King's eldest daughter, Yolanda King, told the gathering: "I know it is the prayers of so many of you and from all over the world that carried her safely home. We knew firsthand the enduring power of love."

Inside the silent sanctuary, mourners filed slowly past the casket, some lingering a moment before moving on. A shroud of flowers blanketed the lower half of the casket, and wreaths stood on either side, decorated with roses, King's favorite flower.

At least 6,000 adults and children passed through the sanctuary in the first three hours, officials said. ERRIN HAINES (AP)

Katrina Evacuees Face Hotel Deadline

HOUSTON | Thousands of Hurricane Katrina evacuees who have been staying in hotels at FEMA's expense will have to pay their own way beginning Tuesday unless they were able to arrange extensions from federal officials.

Hotel managers posted notices and slipped leaflets under evacuees' room doors informing them of the deadline. The Federal Emergency Management Agency will allow those who received extensions to stay through Feb. 13 or March 1, depending on their circumstances.

The agency authorized extensions for evacuees staying in more than 20,000 hotel rooms in more than 40 states. But about 5,000 evacuees nationwide did not contact the agency or were unable to get an extension.

FEMA said it has spent $529 million so far on putting evacuees up in hotels. (AP)

N.C. Dad Indicted In Deaths

Banking executive accused of killing twin five-year-olds

CHARLOTTE, N.C. | A banking executive accused of fatally stabbing his twin 5-year-old daughters last month was indicted Monday on first-degree murder charges.

The indictment against David Crespi, 45, does not say whether prosecutors will seek the death penalty for the Jan. 20 slayings of Samantha and Tessarra Crespi.

David Crespi, a senior vice president in the audit division of Charlotte-based Wachovia Corp., was alone with the children in the family home when they were killed.

Crespi

He called 911, then surrendered at the scene without resistance, police said.

He didn't enter a plea at his initial court appearance last month.

Crespi's wife, Kim Crespi, said last month that her husband had battled depression for the 10 years they had been married and was taking medication. She said he took a leave last year from Wachovia.

While preparing to bury the girls in Sacramento, Calif., the family's hometown, Kim Crespi told The Charlotte Observer that her husband had once hinted he might do something drastic to his family.

"He said, 'I am sad that this world is so dark sometimes, and they would be a part of it.' And I said, 'You wouldn't ever do anything, would you?' And he said, 'No, no,'" she said. (AP)

Violence Across Iraq Kills 11 as Shiite Feast Nears

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Gunmen attacked a home northeast of Baghdad as the family was performing Shiite religious rituals, wounding six in violence ahead of this week's major Shiite feast. At least 11 people died in scattered shootings and bombings in Iraq on Monday, police said.

The attack occurred in the town of Abu Sidaa, officials said. The wounded included three women and a 1-year-old boy, according to

Dr. Ahmed Fouad of the hospital in nearby Baqouba.

Fouad said the family was performing Shiite rituals associated with Ashoura, the most important date in the Shiite calendar which falls this year on Thursday.

Sunni extremists have targeted the past two Ashoura festivals. Eight suicide bombers killed 55 Shiites last year. In 2004, at least 181 people died in bombings at Shiite shrines in Baghdad and Karbala.

Also Monday, several thousand people rallied in Kut, 100 miles southeast of Baghdad, as part of ongoing protests against caricatures of the Prophet Muhammad. (AP)

Haiti Faces Pivotal Moment at Polls

Security tight for first presidential election since ouster of Aristide

GONAIVES, HAITI | Mules laden with sacks of ballots were led into Haiti's countryside Monday to reach a remote village on the eve of elections aimed at putting Haiti's experiment with democracy back on track.

Hours before polls open Tuesday, thousands of U.N. peacekeepers fanned out to guard against attacks by heavily armed gangs, some of them loyal to Jean-Bertrand Aristide, the president ousted in a rebellion two years ago.

"Haiti's future depends on this vote," Jacques Bernard, director general of the electoral council, told reporters in Port-au-Prince.

MAKING CHOICES: Men stand next to pillars plastered with campaign posters in Gonaives, Haiti, on Monday. There are 33 candidates in Tuesday's presidential vote.

He defended a decision not to put voting stations inside the sprawling, seaside slum of Cite Soleil, a base for armed gangs blamed for a wave of kidnappings in the capital. Bernard said Cite Soleil, an area that even heavily armed U.N. peacekeepers using tank-like vehicles have not fully penetrated, is too dangerous for election workers.

There are 33 candidates in the presidential election, including two former presidents, a former rebel in the insurgency that ousted Aristide, and a former army officer accused in the death of a Haitian reporter. If no candidate wins a majority, a March 19 runoff would be held between the top two candidates. (AP)

Families of Ferry Victims Storm Company Offices

SAFAGA, EGYPT | Hundreds of relatives of passengers on a ferry that sank in the Red Sea attacked the offices of the ship's owners Monday, throwing furniture into the street and tearing down the company's sign. Riot police fired tear gas to restore order.

Family members also tried to storm a hospital in another port town after it displayed photographs of bodies retrieved from the sea. They told authorities they wanted to come inside to identify the bodies in the hospital morgue.

The relatives are desperate to know whether their loved ones were among the more than 1,000 who drowned and they say El Salam Maritime still has not released the victims' names. (AP)

Royal Caribbean Plans $1.24B Ship

Cruise line orders world's largest, most costly passenger vessel

MIAMI | Royal Caribbean International on Monday ordered the world's largest and most expensive cruise ship, a $1.24 billion vessel that will hold up to 6,400 passengers. It's the latest step in the industry trend of supersizing ships, which delight many passengers but are too crowded for other guests.

The ship, dubbed Project Genesis, will be 220,000 gross registered tons when it is delivered to the world's second-largest cruise operator in fall 2009 by Oslo, Norway-based shipbuilder Aker Yards. Gross registered tons is the standard way to measure a ship's size and is a unit of volume equal to 100 cubic feet.

The ship will weigh about 100,000 tons based on displacement — a Nimitz-class aircraft carrier comes in at about 97,000 tons.

The $1.24 billion figure includes all expenses for the ship, "from forks and knives and sheets to artwork and everything else," said Harri Kulovaara, the Miami-based cruise line's executive vice president of maritime operations.

The announcement also steals some of the spotlight from rival Carnival Corp., the world's largest cruise operator. Carnival has studied building a ship about the same size, but its Pinnacle project is "on the back burner" because of its prohibitively high price, spokesman Tim Gallagher said.

Carnival Corp.'s Cunard Line currently has the world's largest cruise ship — the Queen Mary 2 — at 151,400 gross registered tons. But Royal Caribbean is scheduled to get an even bigger ship in June, the 160,000-ton Freedom of the Seas. Both will be eclipsed by Project Genesis. JOHN PAIN (AP)

Yahoo, AOL to Charge E-Mail Senders Who Bypass Filters

Two of the world's biggest e-mail account providers, Yahoo Inc. and America Online, plan to introduce a service that would charge senders a fee to route their e-mail directly to a user's mailbox without first passing through junk mail filters, representatives of both companies said Sunday. The fees, which would range from ¼ cent to 1 cent per e-mail, are the latest attempts by the companies to weed out spam and identity-theft scams. (AP)

Metrobus Collides With School Bus

All injuries sustained not life-threatening despite heavy damage

CENTREVILLE, VA. | A veteran Metrobus driver was charged with reckless driving after his vehicle collided with a school bus Monday. Both bus drivers, one student and an aide aboard the school bus were hurt.

According to the Fairfax County Police Department, the Metrobus was heading west on Braddock Road when it crossed the double yellow line.

The two vehicles collided on the drivers' sides, trapping the school bus driver for a time. Both buses sustained heavy damage.

"All of the injuries are non-life-threatening, which is amazing, given the damage to the vehicles," said Officer Shelley Broderick, a police spokeswoman.

The school bus was transporting three students to the Kilmer Center, a special education center at Kilmer Middle School in Vienna, said Paul Regnier, a Fairfax County Public Schools spokesman. One student, the driver and the aide were hospitalized.

Metrobus driver Wilbur H. Lucas Jr., 46, was treated at Inova Fair Oaks Hospital and released. Police later charged him with reckless driving.

"The accident is still under investigation. We need to look at his overall driving record. We'll also want to look at the police report and interview the supervisor who went to the scene," said Cathy Asato, a Metro spokeswoman. DERRILL HOLLY (AP)

The heart of Gov. Tim Kaine's transportation funding plan — tax increases on car sales and insurance premiums — died Monday in the House Finance Committee. Because the House has no plan of its own for dedicating about $1 billion annually to a worsening transportation crisis, that leaves only the Senate's transportation tax package surviving. (AP)

Council Raises Lease Heat

Emergency bill would cap District's spending on ballpark at $300M

WASHINGTON | On the eve of the long-awaited vote on a Washington Nationals baseball stadium lease, members of the D.C. Council announced a make-or-break emergency bill designed to limit the city's construction costs.

Without the legislation, which would limit city spending on stadium construction at $300 million, the 13-member council would not approve the lease, council members predicted late Monday. A vote on a lease agreement reached in December was scuttled because eight members opposed the deal, prompting the city and Major League Baseball to negotiate a new deal last month.

"The bottom line is, eight votes

After the city and baseball reached the revised agreement, which includes a $20 million contribution from baseball for stadium construction, Mayor Anthony A. Williams negotiated a side deal with construction companies setting a "guaranteed maximum price" for the city at $320 million.

But Council Chair Linda Cropp said the consultants had concluded

Md. Court Stays Evans Execution

COLLEGE PARK, MD. | By issuing a stay of the execution for Vernon Evans Monday, Maryland's highest court is set to re-examine a University of Maryland analysis on the role that race and geography play in the state's death penalty.

The Court of Appeals rejected claims in the past from inmates who said their death sentences were tainted by race and where their crimes were committed, including one last year from Evans.

Wesley Baker, executed in December, lost a similar appeal in October.

But Evans' attorneys said they took a different procedural approach with their latest challenge, filing a new type of appeal and citing specific evidence that they claim shows Evans faced discrimination after his arrest and during his trial.

BUS TAKES A RIDE: The Steelers' Jerome Bettis, who announced his retirement after the Super Bowl, rides with Minnie Mouse at a celebration in Disney World Monday.

Steelers Took Road Less Traveled

Super Bowl champs thrived with historic challenge in playoffs

SUPER BOWL | The Pittsburgh Steelers owned the easy road to the Super Bowl all those years they squandered home-field advantage, all those years coach Bill Cowher's teams couldn't stand up to the pressure, the moment, the challenge.

Maybe this is what was needed to bring out the best in a team that often was among the NFL's top teams, but never played like it when it counted most.

No team had won three road playoff games and then the Super Bowl, much less by beating the top three teams in its conference and the best from the opposing conference. Making the challenge even greater, the Steelers had to win their final four regular-season games just to reach the playoffs.

"It feels so much better to do something people say you can't do," linebacker Joey Porter said after the Steelers won their first Super Bowl in 26 years by beating the Seattle Seahawks 21-10 Sunday. "There's no better feeling than that. We will always be remembered for the way we did it."

After going from 15-1 a year ago to 11-5 during a regular season marked by injuries — quarterback Ben Roethlisberger was out four weeks with two knee problems — and a three-game losing streak, the Steelers fit a career's worth of highlights into a month of playoffs.

By doing so, those four AFC championship game losses and one Super Bowl defeat since January 1995 finally began to fade into the past, along with the perception the Steelers and their coach couldn't win the big one. ALAN ROBINSON (AP)

Adu Seeks Happy Days With United

UNITED | The last time Freddy Adu sat down with reporters after a D.C. United practice, he was a petulant teenager whose outburst over playing time led to a suspension.

Nearly four months later, the 16-year-old soccer whiz flashed his more familiar million-dollar smile Monday following his first preseason workout with the team in 2006. His mission this year: Have fun all he time.

"Some games, you'd be having fun. Some days, it wasn't there," Adu said. "Now I just want to maintain that. Every time I'm out there I'm actually going to have something on my wrist written down, 'Enjoy yourself.' I've got to constantly keep reminding myself to enjoy myself."

Adu is in the same position as he was last February, hoping to crack United's starting lineup and make an impression that could get him selected for the U.S. national team for the 2006 World Cup.

Time is running short on Adu's World Cup hopes. He was released from camp last week, and he said coach Bruce Arena's parting message was: "Your best shot at making the World Cup team is if you're a regular starter for D.C."

"Bruce said he's going to be monitoring my every move," Adu said. "I've just got to work hard and keep improving and bring that to D.C. United." JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Freddy Adu still holds out hope that he will be part of the U.S. World Cup team.

The Terrapins Are Missing the Point

Strawberry's struggles at new position are at core of recent slump

TERPS HOOPS | As the season began, Maryland's D.J. Strawberry faced two monumental challenges.

First, he had to return from the knee injury brought his sophomore season to a premature end. And he had to do that while playing a brand new position, perhaps the most demanding on the court.

The results have been mixed. Though Strawberry has proven that his torn anterior cruciate ligament is a thing of the past, his transition to point guard has been bumpy. In recent games, coach Gary Williams often has turned to senior backup Sterling Ledbetter to run the point, bumping Strawberry to his natural position at small forward.

Ledbetter got his first start of the season in Sunday's loss at N.C. State. Williams cited the game's matchups for the lineup change. "It picks up, definitely, when I'm out there on the point and D.J. is on the wing," Ledbetter said. "We're a lot more aggressive. It's a good combo."

The switch had little effect on the result Sunday. Ledbetter recorded just two points and one assist in the third straight loss for the Terrapins' (14-7, 4-4 in the ACC). Maryland desperately needs a win Tuesday over Virginia with No. 2 Duke coming to College Park on Saturday.

Maryland has two highly touted recruits coming in next year with the ability to play point guard — Potomac (Va.) High's Eric Hayes and Montrose Christian's Reivis Vasquez.

For now, though, the responsibility stays with Strawberry and Ledbetter. And their production could go a long way toward deciding if Terrapin fans get to feel March Madness or if they'll simply be mad in March. DEREK TURNER

ACC Benches Refs for Improper Call

COLLEGE HOOPS | The referees who worked the Florida State-Duke game were suspended for one game Monday for what the league said was an unnecessary technical foul on a Seminoles player.

The crew of Mike Eades, Ray

Natili and Ed Corbett shouldn't have assessed a technical on Florida State's Alexander Johnson in the second half of Duke's 97-96 overtime win Saturday, said John Clougherty, coordinator of men's basketball officials for the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The technical was Johnson's fifth foul, and he left with 9:23 remaining. Johnson had 13 points and 11 rebounds prior to that. Johnson drew his fourth foul for an intentional foul on Duke's Shelden Williams, who quickly got to his feet and bumped Johnson. Replays showed Johnson attempting to back away. (AP)

GW, Georgetown Jump 2 Spots in Rankings

COLLEGE HOOPS | Buoyed by two wins each last week, George Washington and Georgetown jumped two spots in the AP's latest top 25 poll released on Monday.

The Colonials (18-1) moved up to No. 8 after defeating Xavier Thursday and stomping on Richmond Sunday. Georgetown (16-4) is up to No. 15 thanks to wins over DePaul and Pittsburgh. The Pittsburgh victory was the second for the Hoyas against a Top Ten team.

Connecticut was a runaway No. 1 for the third straight week. Duke, Memphis, Villanova and Gonzaga rounded out the top 5.

No. 23 North Carolina (14-5) was the lone newcomer to the poll. The Tar Heels had been ranked for seven straight weeks before falling out last month following a loss to Virginia and a one-point win over Florida State. The defending national champions returned to the rankings having won four of their last five games, including wins last week over Maryland and Clemson.

Roy Hibbert and the Hoyas are No. 15.

Implant's Drawback

FDA warns of risk for meningitis in early version of hearing aid

DEVICES | Children with an early version of the cochlear implant face an increased risk of bacterial meningitis beyond just the first two years following implantation of the hearing devices, the Food and Drug Administration warned Monday.

The increased risk means the young implant patients should be monitored as long as the devices are in place for signs of the sometimes fatal infection of the fluid surrounding the brain and spinal cord.

Deaf children fitted with the implants and a positioner get bacterial meningitis more often than either children with the implants that don't have the small rubber wedge or those without implants at all, the FDA said in separate letters to patients and doctors.

The rubber wedge originally was used to help doctors position the implants during surgery. Advanced Bionics Corp. was the only manufacturer to sell implants with positioners. None has been implanted since July 2002.

It remains unclear how the positioner increases the risk, the FDA said. Nor does the agency have enough information to recommend removing the devices, given the risk of postoperative infection. (AP)

Lean Plate Club

Washington Post nutrition writer SALLY SQUIRES takes questions about healthy eating habits today at 1 p.m. | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

I have a hankering for a Manwich sandwich. Other than using ground turkey instead of ground beef, how can I make it healthier?

You could make it with very lean ground beef. You could also make it with ground chicken. You could add some beans to it. You could try a ground meat substitute. You could cook some Portobello mushrooms then pulse them in a food processor briefly and mix with any of the above. There are so many options, so little time...

Kids Need Exercise, Calcium

NUTRITION | Doctors should evaluate children for the amount of calcium they get and encourage them to exercise to help prevent broken bones later in life, the American Academy of Pediatrics advises.

National data show that most American children over age 8 don't get enough calcium, a deficiency that increases their risks for developing osteoporosis in adulthood, the academy said in a report released Monday in the journal Pediatrics.

The bone-thinning disease is associated with aging and afflicts 10 million Americans, mostly older women. National data show it is responsible for more than 1.5 million bone fractures each year.

There's also evidence suggesting that fractures may be on the rise in U.S. adolescents, perhaps because calcium-deficient diets and little exercise already have weakened their bones even if they haven't yet developed osteoporosis, said Dr. Craig B. Langman, who treats pediatric bone problems at Chicago's Children's Memorial Hospital.

Calcium is needed for bone formation, and weight-bearing exercise — any repetitive activity in which the arms or legs bear the body's weight — strengthens bones. LINDSEY TANNER (AP)

Black Power Broker

'Negroes With Guns' changed political involvement for blacks

HISTORY | "Robert Williams," said Malcolm X, "was ahead of his time."

Williams' 1962 book "Negroes With Guns" was part of the foundation of the Black Panther Party. But Williams isn't included in most present-day accounts of the civil-rights movement.

Williams is a natural subject for study, said Sandra Dickson, whose documentary "Negroes With Guns: Rob Williams and Black Power" premieres tonight as part of PBS' Independent Lens series.

The film explores the events in Monroe, N.C., that made Williams a leading advocate of deviating from the nonviolent methods of the mainstream civil-rights movement. Williams came to prominence in 1958 after two black children were jailed after a white girl said she kissed one of them.

Williams, who headed the local NAACP chapter, became what biographer Timothy Tyson calls "a one-man press office," winning international media coverage that compelled Gov. Luther Hodges to release the boys.

But while Williams used non-

violent protest, he was also arming blacks and teaching them marksmanship. Williams' position conflicted with the beliefs of some civil-rights leaders: In 1959, the NAACP suspended Williams' chapter.

In 1961 Freedom Riders arrived in Monroe to try to integrate the town through nonviolent protest. The Riders clashed with the Klan in Monroe, sparking what the documentary calls a race riot.

In the middle of the chaos, a white couple was surrounded by a mob. Williams kept the couple in his home, shielding them from the mob — an action that led police to charge him with kidnapping.

"Negroes with Guns" brings the events of that summer to life with photographs, newspaper articles and a documentary, "Robert Williams: Violent Crusader," broadcast in '61 by a Charlotte television station.

Few whites who lived in Monroe at the time were willing to work with the filmmakers, Dickson said, and only one white local, Vann Secrest, is interviewed onscreen.

Tyson believes Williams is left out of modern accounts of the civil-rights movement because he "didn't fit our sugarcoated version" of that era.

He said many of the tributes to Rosa Parks following her death last year left out the fact that she was a gun owner. Williams and Parks were close — she delivered his eulogy when he was buried in Monroe in 1996.

"Williams gets ignored because you can't tell his story without messing up the mainstream story," Tyson said. TIM WHITMIRE (AP)

The 'Party' hosts make sure that only the saddest people get a big bash.

Parties All The Time

UPN wants to 'Get This Party Started', hell or high water

DEBUT | It's one thing to pound together a dream home for a family in need, as on "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition" and other redemptive hammer-and-paint shows. A legacy of paternalistic do-goodism has been a TV mainstay since the weepy reign of "Queen for a Day."

But perhaps studio samaritans are losing perspective. UPN's new reality makeover series, "Get This Party Started" (premiering tonight at 9 p.m.), is somewhere between the roll-up-your-sleeves shows and such hypnotic train wrecks as "My Super Sweet 16."

As the title implies, folks who might not otherwise have a party are given a party, courtesy of show hosts Kristin Cavallari and Ethan Erickson and a team of party planners. There is the subterfuge of "How Do I Look," the jaw-dropping results and, of course, the story.

The debut episode focuses on the Jones family of New Orleans. They lost their home to Hurricane Katrina, and Mom, Dad and daughters Arin and Alexis show patience and good-heartedness during their exile in a Baton Rouge hotel. But giving Alexis a glittering 21st birthday party in Las Vegas feels like a gray area, priorities-wise. What could Dad, back in his temporary digs, have done with the cost of all those donated flowers?

MISTERS AND MISSUSES SMITH: CBS has signed up a slew of stars for its crime drama pilot “Smith,” including Ray Liotta, Virginia Madsen and Amy Smart. The show’s twist is that its plots are from the point of view of a crew of career criminals.

Love Is a Battlefield

Former military man James Blunt marches to a beat of his own

NEW FACES | James Blunt may be the only musician who can claim “queen’s bodyguard” as a day job. That’s what the 29-year-old Brit was doing while writing his debut album, “Back to Bedlam,” which has sold more than 500,000 copies in the U.S.

Blunt’s military background starkly contrasts with his music. Delivered in falsetto, his strummy slow-dancers deal with civilian concerns of love and loyalty. They bear no trace of machismo or gun fire. The only reference to the four years Blunt spent in the army is “No Bravery,” which offers a chilling view of the conflict in Kosovo, where Blunt served in the late ’90s.

His ability to write depended on the operations he was on, but his guitar was always along for the ride. In Kosovo, Blunt kept his guitar strapped to the outside of the tank.

“People have a picture in their mind of people in the army,” Blunt said. “The people I worked with in the army, their passions included writing or painting ... The army recruits from all walks of life.”

Blunt launches a U.S. tour in March. But tonight he will take a short break from the sold-out shows on his current world tour to headline a special pre-Grammy performance at the House of Blues in West Hollywood, Calif. — even though Blunt is not up for a Grammy.

“Maybe it’s because I’m too young,” he quipped. SUSAN CARPENTER (L.A. TIMES)

Television

NECESSARY ROUGHNESS: Cartoonish violence ruled the day at the annual knockdown competition among advertisers Sunday as Bud Light, Diet Pepsi, Michelob and Sprint used physical gags to hawk their wares at the Super Bowl. (AP)

Speak of the Dead

The truth lies more than six feet deep in 'Secrets of the Dead'

PRESERVATION | Every "CSI" episode teaches us that death shall have no dominion over forensic science.

And series like "Secrets of the Dead" demonstrate that even the moldiest cadaver can contain a smorgasbord of historical information. So what happens when researchers discover dead bodies that are both prehistoric and nearly pristine?

"The Perfect Corpse" on NOVA

FRESH FIND: Peat bogs do an uncanny job of preserving even ancient bodies.

(8 p.m., PBS) looks at bodies discovered in Ireland's waterlogged peat bogs. The damp bogs' chemical composition have left the bodies in perfect condition, even after thousands of years.

Unlike dusty mummies or old bones, these waterlogged Irishmen retain their soft skin. Details like fingerprints and even skin pores are visible under magnification.

It seems our old friends did not meet a pleasant end. Archaeologists, historians and scientists collaborate to determine whether they met with simple foul play or whether they could have been the unlucky victims of a religious sacrifice intended to appease ancient gods now lost to history. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

ON TV TONIGHT

SO MUCH FUN, IT'S SICK

So much happens in this episode of HOUSE (9 p.m., Fox)! We won't spoil this plot-tastic twists and turns, but be it known that House pulls the meanest trick on Cameron. We're still laughing.

YOU'RE TOO COOL, BABY

Witness the strained hipness of LOVE MONKEY (10 p.m., CBS) as Tom (Tom Cavanaugh) puts together the first video for pouty protege Wayne. Other pretty-boy singer James Blunt (see page 19) guest stars.

COSTUMES ENCOURAGED

AMERICAN IDOL (8 p.m., Fox) Maybe the show wouldn't be a ragtag circus of gimmicks, ringers, sob stories, delusionals and famewhores if the producers didn't encourage it.

TELL THE NICE DOCTOR: House worms family secrets out of a patient's kid. Nice.

DON'T FORGET 'SHOES'

Today sees the release of cutesy-themed DVDs of SEX AND THE CITY dubbed "Essentials"—Breakups, "Romance," "Mr. Big" and "Lust," which if you ask us covers the whole six seasons. ARION BERGER (EXPRESS)

Education

Colleges in areas hit by the hurricane tailor their studies locally

For engineering students, the mechanics of pumps and levees has never been more important. For biologists, the study of mold never more timely. For political scientists, the challenges of democratic decision-making never more real.

The flood waters that followed Hurricane Katrina left New Orleans' colleges with a huge array of problems, but also one unprecedented and enormous opportunity. In nearly every academic field, from architecture to sociology to economics, the city's rebuilding offers a real-world educational laboratory the likes of which American universities have never seen.

"This is our Katrina dividend," said Reed Kroloff, dean of Tulane University's school of architecture, which has revamped its entire curriculum to focus on Katrina-related issues.

Even as they lay off staff and cut programs, the colleges say they are determined to take advantage. Offering a unique educational experience may be their best hope for attracting students to a city with so many problems and inconveniences.

Each of New Orleans' half-dozen or so major colleges, in varying stages of recovery, say they plan to blur the boundaries between the recovering city and the classroom. Tulane is adding a public service requirement, while Dillard University will require a Katrina-related academic project of students. All are reworking classes.

The focus may be sharpest at Loyola University, a Jesuit school next door to Tulane with a long-standing tradition of "moral learning" and public service.

"Sometimes [students] think what they're doing in college is disconnected from the 'real world,'" said the Rev. Kevin Wildes, Loyola's president. But in post-storm New Orleans, he said, there is little danger of that.

When Loyola reopened this semester, course offerings included "Psychology of Disasters" and "Religious Responses to Katrina."

"There is an interest in trying to see how these things relate to our religious background and culture," said religious studies professor Elizabeth Goodine. "How could God let this happen to my city?" is an important question for them."

Many Loyola courses blend teaching, research and public service; for example, students in an oral history course will gather stories from victims.

"This is exactly the kind of subject matter, community outreach and community service, that I always try to lead my students into in this class without forcing them into it," said Leslie Parr, a photography professor. JUSTIN POPE (AP)

The Super Bowl

Post columnist MICHAEL WILBON was online Monday and talked Super Bowl: the game, the teams, the refs, the calls and halftime | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

I feel bad for the Seahawks fans. The Steelers made the plays they needed to win, and for that reason they deserve to be champions. But the officiating was reminiscent of the calls that Duke often gets in their basketball games. In addition to the dubious penalties against Seattle, are we to believe that the Steelers OL were never guilty of holding?

The holding call made against Seattle that negated a gain to the Steelers 1-yard line and PRECEDED the Hasselbeck interception was simply not holding. John Madden said so during the telecast and you could see there was no holding, period. That assessment can be made on every single play from scrimmage. It wasn't holding.

There were some bad calls, yes, but Seattle did nothing to stop the Steelers. If a team needs help from the refs to win a game, then that team doesn't deserve to be in the Super Bowl. Seattle couldn't tackle Willie Parker during that 75-yard touchdown run, nor could they stop the flicker from Randle El to Hines Ward. Enough about the refs, Seattle got beat.

More than one thing can be true about a game. Seattle blew chance after chance. And the refereeing was terrible. At least five and as many as seven calls went against Seattle that were embarrassingly wrong. Willie Parker's run was fabulous. Randle El's pass was even better.

What was worse: the officiating or the Rolling Stones halftime performance?

I'm loathe to criticize the Stones because my childhood friend, Darryl Jones, is the Stones' bass player and has been for years, so I'm a little conflicted there. I just thought the NFL should have selected some of Detroit's finest singing talent, whether we're talking about Smokey Robinson or Stevie Wonder or Madonna or Eminem (okay, rap and not singing) or Bob Seger or the Isley Brothers or Anita Baker. There's something in Detroit for everybody and there was no need to go outside local talent, which is among the best in the world.

I heard that the NFL uses a new football for every play in the first half? Why do they do this and why don't they let the home team "rub" them down before the game? Apparently it's very hard to get a good grip on the new balls. Anyway, it seems pretty stupid and I think it takes away from the game.

I completely agree with you and think it's beyond stupid. Why do it? So there are more balls to be auctioned off or put in the Hall of Fame glass cases?

Rabbi Article Disappointing

I AM WRITING to convey my disappointment in the concluding paragraph of the "Steel This Job" article on the Chabad Rabbi in Monday's Express. What started out as an interesting piece that provided a glimpse into Jewish life on University of Maryland's campus ended with a stereotype. The proffered advice on how to become a chabad rabbi — "Better start growing a beard and sideburns" was very insensitive and ruined what was otherwise a nice insight into the life of a rabbi. I hope Express will be more sensitive in the future in articles about different cultures.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Your current position is one to be envied at this time, whether you know it or not. It may be time, once again, for you to count your blessings.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Ease and comfort may have to be abandoned in favor of effectiveness. You can't afford to take the easiest route if it won't bring success.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Force, either literal or figurative, is best avoided at all times. If you must have your way, get it by being calmly persuasive.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Make changes quickly and with subtlety and the rewards are likely to exceed your own considerable expectations. Togetherness counts at this time.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Now is the time for you to lend your energies to a cause that has been lacking support for some time. With you on board, things are looking up.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The speed with which you can accomplish routine tasks will enable you to embrace a new project, which is likely to take up a great deal of time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You can prompt someone else to do better work, simply by remaining on the sidelines and coaching with gentle, effective encouragement.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're in for a treat, but you must be sure to make yourself available when the time comes. This opportunity isn't likely to linger.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) A question of values is likely to set the tone for the entire day. It's not a matter of right or wrong, but more a question of propriety.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Take care that you don't miss anything which could threaten your eventual success. Focus on details—the smaller the more important.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) The cure for what ails you at this time is within your reach, though you may not know quite what it is just yet.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Use your imagination and you'll very likely come up with a plan that will be adopted by the powers that be.

Surfing

Foam-blank-makers scramble to fill new void in the industry

The wipeout might not be so bad after all.

For sure, the surf culture is still shaking after Clark Foam — an icon among surfers — suddenly closed its Orange County, Calif., factory after producing an estimated 90 percent of the blanks used to craft custom-made boards worldwide.

"It's kind of like saying Microsoft just pulled Windows off the shelf. Uh oh, that's different," said Sean Mattison, a buyer for Surf Ride, a shop in Oceanside.

But the latest forecast is for foam — lots of it — pouring into the $200 million surfboard market from small manufacturers around the world anxious to replace the estimated 250,000 blanks that Clark produced annually in a near monopoly.

“They’re just trying to make as many as fast as they possibly can.”

CRAIG HOLLINGSWORTH
CUSTOM SURFBOARD MAKER

Making custom boards is a painstaking process that holds special meaning for surfers. Foam blanks — which resemble rough surfboards — are smoothed and shaved before painters add designs and color. Boards are then covered in fiberglass and polished.

At a recent action-sports trade show in San Diego, manufacturers from surfing hotspots from as far as Craig Hollingsworth said blank-makers are going for quantity, not quality, for now.

Australia and South Africa promised that, by June, they could fill the void by ramping up production.

"Going from underdog to top dog is exciting, but it comes with problems," said Gary Linden, general manager of Walker Foam.

Manufacturers such as Walker are pushing equipment to the limit and hiring more workers to be the first to get their foam to anxious board-makers.

In the meantime, surfers will see dips and curls — tight supplies and higher prices.

At Hansen Surfboards in Encinitas, Mark Dastoli said he expected to pay as much as $200 more for a new board than he would have before Clark Foam shut down. He shrugged off the cost.

"They don't charge me to go in the ocean," he said.

Indeed, if any industry can ride out a crisis like "Blank Monday," as the Dec. 5 closing of Clark is called, it would be the laid-back surfing sector. Many people in the business say surfboards were underpriced anyway and might never return to previous levels.

"Everything will be fine," said board-shaper Craig Hollingsworth. "Most customers have been patient about it. A lot of customers are starting to appreciate a custom-made surfboard."

Other suppliers will have to make adjustments to offer the same features as Clark Foam, he said.

"They're just trying to make as many as fast as they possibly can," he said. BERNIE WILSON (AP)

Tired of Smoking Cigarettes?

Have you tried to quit on your own, but had trouble succeeding?

How about getting some help with quitting by using new low and nicotine-free cigarettes as a step to becoming smoke free.

The Lombardi Comprehensive Cancer Center at Georgetown University is seeking participants for a research study that examines this novel approach to quitting smoking. Participants will be assigned to a cigarette group or to a nicotine lozenge group. The lozenge group will be asked to quit smoking during the next 12 weeks. Participants in the cigarette group will smoke the new cigarettes for 6 weeks. They will be asked not to smoke any other brand of cigarette during this time, and then they will be asked to quit smoking for the next 6 weeks. We will provide participants with free cigarettes and lozenges. The study will also look at the health effects of these products. You may be eligible to participate in this study if you are 18-70 years old, motivated to quit smoking, in good physical and mental health, willing to commit to 12 clinic visits over a 14 week period, willing to fast overnight on some visits, and have your blood drawn. The clinic is located in Washington, D.C., on Wisconsin Avenue, in the Glover Park neighborhood. Parking is available and there is easy Metro Bus access.

If you are interested in more information, please call the research team at 202-687-8345, or email them at tobacco@georgetown.edu.

Brilliant Careers

Fall trends that might be fit for work

Working women rejoice: You'll actually have stylish-yet-appropriate clothes to wear next fall. Even better, there also will be clothes for you to wear to parties and play dates. The collections previewed Sunday on the runways of New York Fashion Week were mostly wearable. But there were some misses, too, especially short bubble skirts and knickers.

DIANE VON FURSTENBERG brought back the 1980s power suit, down to the pencil skirts with high waists, puffy sleeves and oversized lumberjack-check and houndstooth prints. She modernized the look by slimming the silhouette and adding feminine details, such as a peplum on a jacket or using a rosebud-print chiffon fabric for a blouse. The newest incarnation of her wrap dress had a fuller skirt and was made in brushed cotton and suede instead of jersey.

Eveningwear designers MARK BADGLEY and JAMES MISCHKA decided to court the funkier Grammy crowd instead of the more staid Oscar-goers. Several styles featured accordian-style vertical pleats. The best were a bright yellow strapless cocktail dress with a bow under the bust, and a printed silk satin and chiffon gown in plum, black and white.

TULEH's socialite customer will have to go even lighter on their low-fat fare to get into BRYAN BRADLEY's new long, skinny skirts, but it's all in the name of a super-polished look.

Clockwise from above: Badgley Mischka's sexy separates, Tracy Reese brings the pretty, sultry silk from Tuleh and Diane von Furstenberg's careerist clothing.

Most of the skirts had high waists and hit below the knee, and were worn with booties with wooden, stacked heels.

TRACY REESE's signature style is "pretty" and for fall she did it again. Her wide patent leather belts were worn high on the waist over a black V-shaped vest and cream-colored shirt with oversized sleeves, and again with a black tribal beaded blouse and flowing skirt. For dressing up, a blue floral sequined shift glimmered like an ocean and a berry-colored long tiered dress had a tank neckline alternately decorated by ethnic brown beads and glamorous purple crystals.

Scary lip colors are the wave of the future. Shu Uemura's SWEET LIP GLOSSES ($18, shu-uemura-usa.com) come in weird colors and weirder flavors (like the acid green "lime marmalade"), and now they've topped that with three new ones: Daisy (a relatively normal orange-pink), Plumeria (radioactive yellow) and Lavender (duh). The somewhat sticky, but long-lasting glosses are each supposed to taste different, but they all come off as generically fruity. As for the hues, Plumeria goes on colorless, Daisy adds a lovely hint of warm pink, and lavender looks blue.

Enlarged Prostate?

- Urgent/frequent urination, especially during the night
- Interrupted stream/flow
- Feeling that your bladder does not completely empty
- Feeling that you need to strain

If you have been experiencing these symptoms for the past 3 months, we have a research study for you. Our local physicians are studying an investigational medication for the treatment of enlarged prostate, also known as BPH. This investigational medication may reduce the size of the prostate and therefore lessen the bothersome symptoms of BPH.

Men, you may qualify if you:

- are age 40-80 (Those 40-65 must have had a vasectomy.)

Qualified participants will receive all study-related care and study medication.

No Natural Gas? No problem!

Cyprus Air can also install a small propane tank behind your chimney so you can enjoy the beauty, comfort and warmth of gas logs that require no venting. All the heat stays in the room.

A large natural flame uses a minimum of gas and offers moneysaving 99% fuel efficiency. You can burn the logs with the damper open or closed. A closed damper will keep the room heated. No soot or ashes to worry about. Our sets include an oxygen depletion sensor for safe, unvented operation and is design-certified by CSA.

Dig out those vacation photo albums and print out your digital pictures – especially if you favor safaris, extreme skiing vacations and the like. Amateur shutterbugs with a taste for adventure travel can enter to win a trip to scenic Iceland by submitting their best photographs at National Geographic's booth #1004 at the show.

It's all part of National Geographic ADVENTURE's nationwide “Wild Angle” contest, with the grand-prize winner to be announced February 12, 2006! Airfare is provided by Icelandair. Second prize is adventure apparel from Royal Robbins.

But be advised, the competition will be intense.

“Last year's submissions were astounding,” said Holly Saunders, marketing director for National Geographic ADVENTURE. “We received hundreds of entries, each one more beautiful than the next. Everyone had their favorites but after much back and forth, the winning photo was selected based on subject matter, composition, photographic skill, originality and creativity.”

For contest rules, visit:

SPEAKER BIOGRAPHIES

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC

ADVENTURE

Andrew Berg Senior Editor, National Geographic ADVENTURE

Saturday, February 11 • 11:30 am – 12:30 pm • “Great Adventure Sport Trips”

As Senior Editor of National Geographic ADVENTURE, Berg is an expert on the very best in adventure travel. He reports on the sweet spots for rock climbing, kayaking, mountain biking, and more. His presentation is a 10-sport travel guide with the three best worldwide destinations for each... information every adventure travel and sports enthusiast needs to know. Berg was previously editor-in-chief of Detour magazine and a contributing editor for Variety's V Life and for Gruner + Jahr's Stern magazine in Hamburg, Germany.

Costas Christ Columnist, National Geographic ADVENTURE

Saturday, February 11 • 12:45 pm – 1:45 pm • “Responsible Travel”

Costas Christ writes the “World Class” travel column in National Geographic ADVENTURE and has traveled to more than 100 countries, including journeys to some of the earth's most remote places. Along the way, he has worked for Dr. Richard Leakey in Africa, helped National Geographic Explorer-in-Residence, Dr. Sylvia Earle, establish a new marine reserve on the Mesoamerican barrier reef, and assisted Michael Fay, in developing an ecotourism strategy for Gabon following his Megatranssect across Central Africa. An internationally recognized expert on sustainable tourism, Costas is the President of the Adventure Council and serves as the Chairman of Judging for the World Travel and Tourism Council Tourism for Tomorrow Awards. He was a Senior Director at Conservation International.

Peter Potterfield Contributor, National Geographic ADVENTURE

Saturday, February 11 • 2:00 pm – 3:00 pm • “Classic Hikes of the World”

Peter Potterfield has hiked more than 5,000 miles over six continents enabling him to write about wilderness travel, mountaineering, and backcountry adventure for magazines, books, and online publishing. A veteran of expeditions to the far corners of the world, Potterfield has roamed the Himalaya, explored the mountains of Canada's Coast Range, crossed the Swedish Arctic solo, traveled on foot through the wild southern reaches of New Zealand, and retraced Sir Ernest Shackleton's route to salvation on South Georgia Island. Potterfield is the author of a dozen books, including Classic Hikes of the World, In the Zone, High Himalaya, and is the co-author of Himalayan Quest, with Ed Viesturs. He founded MountainZone.com in 1996 and is currently editor of GreatOutdoors.com in Seattle.
